The Daily Press.

The Sanitary Board, if proper advantage be taken, of the circumstance, may lead to a considerable extension of the powers of the Board. In making the Medical Officer of Health entirely independent of the Board, the Government was evidently influenced by a desire to reduce that body to a nullity. It was impossible that the unofficial members of the Board should sit down quietly under the insult, but whether resignation at the present juncture is altogether advisable may be open to question. What the unofficial members should do now is to memorialise the Secretary of State, and at the same time charged of late years have been insufficient to ensure a fair dividend, and provide for the proper working, depreciation, etc., of the fine steamers hitherto employed by the Steamboat Companies, and which have ensured both comfort and safety to the travelling public. No commercial undertaking is, or ought to be, started for a philanthropic purpose; it is, and ought to be, set on foot for the purpose of profitably employing capital, and the capitalist is entitled to such profits as he can legitimately earn. It is to be hoped the companies who have for so long worked the river service under adverse conditions will in future obtain a fitting reward for their enterprise. The time for coming to an agreement with the small fry who were rendering the carrying trade so unprofitable, if it were ever politic to admit of it, had certainly arrived. The present war between China and Japan will have, as one of its consequences, the opening up of the upper waters of the Pearl River to foreign trade and navigation. This will lead to a very considerable expansion of the river trade, of which the existing companies will naturally take the lion's share. As the Chairman of the local Steamboat Company stated at the last half yearly meeting, the contingency has not been lost sight of, and no doubt now light steamers will be ordered as soon as any chance of their being required is known. The agreement for five years among the river steamship owners, seeing how largely it will affect local capital, is, in a matter of congratulation, more especially as it may, in the near future, have an important effect on the general prosperity of the Colony. At the same time shippers will be glad to know that there is no danger of rates being raised to a point likely to affect profits or reduce trade.

There were 1,470 visitors to the City Hall Museum last week, of whom 119 were Europeans.

The declaration forbidding navigation of the Canton river by night is now withdrawn.

The Birkdale, from Manchester, with iron-chey, arrived at Whangchow on the 17th instant.

The grounding of the new steamer Chitral on the 18th, recently caused damage to the bottom of the vessel, and she is now in dock at Shanghai, having a number of bent plates taken out and straightened.

The Wing, a small steamer, owned by the Chinese Navigation Company, was recently sold to the Amoy, to be used by the player returning to the port of Amoy, and the Wing will be used by the Amoy to be used by the player returning to the port of Amoy.

The Wing will be the player who wins it. The Amoy will be won by Lieut. W. M.

According to the People's Journal the amanuensis of the Sanitary Board has been passed and the conflict has broken out. The Government may think it has a very valuable weapon in the power of the Chamber of Commerce, but it is likely to find that it is a double-edged one. And in connection with the position taken up by the unofficial members of the Legislative Council, it must be noted that they are not unanimous, as one of them, the Hon. H. E. Har, opposed the Medical Officer of Health Bill, and another, the Hon. A. McCausland, asked for delay until the report of the Medical Commission had been published. The Bill was however, passed, and the Government has entered on a direct conflict with the Sanitary Board. The matter should now be carried to the Secretary of State, and if it is, there can be little doubt as to what the result will be. A few years ago there was a similar conflict at Gibraltar, where the Governor tried to thwart the Sanitary Board and reduce its powers to next to nothing. The master was brought before the home Government, with the result that the Board achieved a non-partial victory. It will do so in the case of Szechuen, but it should be ordered to be decided at the Dispensary before being sent out.

violent attempt at murder. From what can be learned of the extraordinary occurrence, it appears that two bookmakers, named O'Brien and Kelly, had engaged the men at the railway station at Orléans, and had agreed to probability awaiting such an opportunity to rob a railway. The latter endeavored to escape, but some of the bullets took effect, and he was removed to the hospital seriously wounded. O'Brien was scoured as soon as possible, and it was found evident that he had a dagger in his possession. The medical man at the hospital reported that there are hopes that Reed will survive his injuries.

The commission asserts that the statement that the only prospect for aged labourers generally is the workhouse is erroneous.
